1 Additional remarks

Paolo reports that the project kicked-off 2 and 3 November 2023. We have a strong focus on teaching. The project is a lump sum project, the next year the onboarding of research and third mission will be emphasised. He mentioned that we are strong in student engagement.

EULiST is looking for a British partner:
TU Wien has a Brexit initiative together with Imperial College London and University of Glasgow. They could be approached.

Madrid received a letter from the EU commission where they congratulate EULiST on their efforts shown so far.

Kurt Matyas plays an important role in the eyes of the rectorate. He won’t take over organisational work but with his contacts within TU Wien and the alliance he will help EULiST. The project is watched by the EU commission and the ministry which underlines the importance.

Paolo reported from a meeting of Austrian alliance members on 19 October 2023. Furthermore, we announced that he retires by the end of 2024. Ingrid Bauer will take over the position of coordinator. The structure at TU Wien presented follows the one created at alliance level. Consequently, everyone has a peer. E.g. an advert for alliance project manager has been published.

Ingrid Bauer reports that EULiST takes a prominent position in TU Wien’s new development plan but with caution due to the uncertainty at the beginning of the project.

Attendees are asked to check the people directory this month and give a commitment to EULiST to have a reliable list for partners to contact. Additional colleagues are, of course, invited too.

The EULiST student board plans a student conference. This multi-day event will consist of different panels where topics concerning EULiST and broader are discussed. Invitees are a certain number of students from every partner university.
At the time of the meeting a host was not determined. Based on the host a detailed budget and financing possibilities can be explored. Might be very interesting for many task groups within EULiST.

A further project that has been discussed are PhD ambassadors at every university.

TU Wien’s project financing is planned to fund mobilities, the project office and some project initiatives.

Question: Are goals qualitatively or quantitatively?
Answer: Qualitatively! The project is financed on a lump sum basis which leaves room to reevaluate certain goals/deliverables.

Ioanna Giouroudi is visiting National Technical University of Athens in the first week of February. For requests or inquiries please contact her.
